The name may say kitchen and bath, but Town and Country Kitchen and Bath is about much more. Owner Ginny Padula can also help you improve your home office, library, and other living spaces. Town and Country is a full-service design center that takes its customers from concept to design to completion. The Red Bank store is a member of the Industry Partner of the American Society of Interior Designers and the National Kitchen and Bath Association.

Their new 3,000-square-foot showroom, which is expected to open in December, will offer a detailed selection of lighting, cabinetry, plumbing fixtures, hardware, granite, tile, fabrics, and home accessories. Whether building a new home or remodeling your old one, Town and Country provides a personal touch for every situation. Padula (with 20 years of experience) and her staff will set up an in-home consultation to determine the design and the architectural details necessary to complete your project; for new homes, they will review the blueprints in the showroom to ensure all details meet your specifications.

"After working with clients for many years I recognize and accept that change never ceases in the world of design," says Ginny. "It provides us the opportunity to become more aware of client needs and [gives us] an understanding of their style." In the store, customers will see the finest of in appliances, including: Wolf and Sub Zero, faucets from Rohl, and wood cabinets from Dewils, Plato, and Yorktowne. These are among the high-quality merchandise available to finish that dream home improvement.

So whether it's building your gourmet kitchen or luxurious bathroom you have always wanted, Town and Country Kitchen and Bath is the place to get your plans off the ground.
